Jay Gould Denounces as Fabrication the Story

That he Bargained for Stanley Matthews' Nomination.

A Senate Committee Looking After Sioux Grievances.

Gould and Matthews

NEW YORK, August 24—The Sun publishes a letter from Washington McLean to Jay Gould in which the former as a friend and supporter of Stanley Matthews asks if there is any truth in the charge that Gould agreed to subscribe a large sum to the Garfield campaign fund upon the condition of Matthews' nomination to the supreme bench. Gould replied denouncing the story as a pure fabrication and asserts that he had no bargain of any sort directly or indirectly with General Garfield. Gould concludes his letter thus: "My acquaintance with Mr. Matthews was not intimate, indeed, I remember that it was at your own personal solicitation that after his nomination I asked Mr. Plumb by an open telegram to aid, if consistent, in his confirmation. Matthews was never my counsel, indeed, he was the friend if not also counsel for the Texas & Pacific, controlled by Thos. A. Scott, and which was at the time a hostile interest to those in which I was interested."

Sioux Grievances

FORT YATES, Dakota, August 24—Senators Davis, Logan and Cameron of the select committee to inquire into the grievances of the Sioux Indians held a council here to-day with the confederated bands at this agency. About three hundred Indians were present, including Sitting Bull, Goll and Rain-in-the-Face, said to be the man who killed Gen. Custer. The inquiries of the commission were principally directed to an investigation of the terms of an agreement transferring 18,000 square miles of this reservation to the government in consideration of 25,000 cows and 10,000 bulls. The Indians claimed they signed the agreement while not fully understanding it. They say they now wish to become farmers and own their lands in severalty if they can be furnished with implements and instructions in cultivation. They are willing to give up their rations, but insisted on their continuing under any other policy. In the council Sitting Bull told the committee he had been appointed by the Great Spirit to speak to them and he alone had the right to express the sentiments of the Sioux. When informed that all should receive recognition he used insulting language to the committee and left the council. He afterwards returned, apologized and addressed the committee, saying he wished eight million for the land covered by the agreement. General Logan replied to Sitting Bull, informing him that he was not chief and that if he used like language to another committee he would be thrown into the guard house and made to work.

Yellow Fever

PENSACOLA, Fla., August 24.—Up to noon to-day no sickness of any kind was reported in this city. A post mortem on the case of the man who died yesterday developed the fact that his death was not caused by yellow fever. Surgeon Murray and Dr. Leonard pronounces the case malarial fever. There are no more cases and no deaths at the navy yard. Before the man died who was sent from Pensacola and before the post mortem was contemplated, old nurses and citizens familiar with yellow fever declared that he did not have it. A large class hold the same belief about the few cases reported at the navy yard.

The Coming Mill

ATCHISON, Kas., August 23.—Slade, the pugilist, who arrived here yesterday with his trainer, Dick Brighton, and his manager, S. H. Rice, has taken quarters at the exposition grounds and gone into fine training. It is said Jem Mace will be here in a few days. Bath house conveniences have been built for Slade's use. There are all sorts of rumors current as to the place where the fight will take place but none appear to be reliable. Slade is in excellent condition. There is a story that John L. Sullivan will also arrive here in a few days and that he intends to back Slade against Mitchell. Slade is very quiet but appears very confident.

KANSAS CITY, August 24.—The Times' Topeka special says: Governor Glick has addressed a letter to the prosecuting attorney of Atchison county calling attention to the law regarding prize fighting and requesting strict enforcement. The attorney general in an interview to-night stated that the law would be enforced and neither Slade nor Mitchell would be permitted to train in the state. The penalty as prescribed is one to ten years imprisonment.

The Markets

BOSTON, August 24.—In wool very little was doing; prices unchanged.

NEW YORK, August 24. Money very easy loaned as low as 1 on stocks and miscellaneous collaterals. In final dealings there was an advance to 2½ to 3, closing offered 2. Prime paper 5 to 6¼, sterling exchange steady 4.82½, demand 4.85¼; governments firm; states nominal; railways quiet and firm.

Shares speculation opened firm and fair amounts of Northern Pacific, Oregon Transcontinental and Denver were taken, prices advancing ⅛ to 1½, the latter Northern Pacific preferred. Before 10.30 stocks were again lower, early strength disappearing entirely. From this time until 2 o'clock the market was quiet and lower. The demand then increased, Jersey Central, Canada Southern, Western Union and southwestern leading the upward movement. The improvement ranged from ⅛ to 1½. Outside of the usually active shares Memphis & Charleston was a feature, rising from 39½ to 47 on large transactions. The advance was due to rumors that the trouble between the company and the East Tennessee had been arranged favorably to the former. It closed 46. Compared with last night prices were ¼ to ⅜ higher except for Northwestern, Lackawanna, Denver, Lake Shore, Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, Michigan Central and Reading, which were ¼ to ⅜ lower. Sales only 265,083, the smallest since August 8. In railway mortgages the most important changes was an advance of 4 per cent in Denver & Rio Grande consols and 2½ in Rio Grande Western firsts.

Mining stocks dull with the exception of Robinson Consolidated, which declined from 57 to 40, closing at 51; Standard Consolidated 5 15 to 6 00, Sierra Nevada 5.10; Little Chief 40 to 45, Sierra Grande 1 05; Barcelona 37 to 34. Sales 41,365 shares.

Paddy Ryan's Racket

CHICAGO, August 24.—It was reported at a late hour last night that Paddy Ryan, the pugilist, had been shot. Numerous reporters kept up a prolonged search for the alleged wounded pugilist, but no positive information was obtained up to a very late hour. Reporters have concluded that Ryan was not shot at all but is off on a big spree. Johnny Files, a pugilist and friend of friend of Ryan's, states this morning that Ryan was not shot; that he (Files) had him in custody. The theory brought forward by Ryan's friends is that he had hurt himself in a drunken fit and has been secreted by his friends.

CHICAGO, August 24.—Paddy Ryan, who it was rumored was concerned in a shooting affair last night, put in an appearance to-day and denied having been concerned in any altercation. He says he was in the company of friends during the night but certainly nothing was kept secret. Detectives and reporters could not locate him.

The services were the most impressive ever held at Chautauqua.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

Count de Chambord, the "King of France," is Dead.

Result of the Recent Fighting in Tonquin Territory.

Reign of Terror in Albania—Christians Murdered.

De Chambord Dead

VIENNA, August 24—Comte de Chambord died at 7 30 this morning.

[Comte de Chambord (Henri Charles Ferdinand Marie Dieudonne d'Artois), Comte and Duc de Bordeaux, was born in Paris September 29, 1820. His father was the duke of Berry, a son of King Charles X, who abdicated in his favor August, 1830. Since that date he has been recognized by the French legitimists as the heir to the throne, and has received the title of Henry V. He married in 1846 a daughter of the duke of Modena, but he has no children, and remains the only surviving member of the elder branch of the Bourbon family. He passed many years at the castle of Frohsdorf, near Vienna. He claimed the throne by divine right, and avowed his devotion to the antiquated political ideas of which the white flag is the symbol. After the deposition of Napoleon III (1870) he issued a proclamation to the French people, which was not approved even by the royalists.]

The Tonquin War

PARIS, August 24. General Bouet, French military commander at Tonquin, in a telegram to Admiral Peyron, minister of marine and of the colonies, giving the details of recent fighting near Hanoi, says that owing to the French reconnoissance the enemy have abandoned their position and fallen back to Son-Tay. He reports the enemy's loss 300 killed and 1,000 wounded.

Christians Murdered

LONDON, August 24.—A special dispatch from Cettinge, Montenegro, says a reign of terror exists in the village of Kassovo, in Albania. The Arnauts are murdering Christians and all the latter that can get away are fleeing from the country. The Turkish officers connive at the outrages on Christians, and have arrested and exiled a number of priests in the Ipod district. Ninety-two persons have been murdered and twenty three villages have been abandoned.

Frozen Mutton.

LONDON, August 24.—The steamer Ionia, from New Zealand via the Straits of Magellan, has arrived at Plymouth with 13,000 frozen carcasses of sheep in good condition. She made the voyage in forty-five days.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Collision of Two Freight Trains on the Denver & Rio Grande Yesterday Morning.

An accident occurred on the Denver & Rio Grande near the depot in this city at half-past 3 yesterday morning, which resulted in the injury of four employes, one of them very seriously. Freight No. 49, in charge of Conductor G. W. Davis, had, with the exception of the caboose and one car, crossed bridge No. 78, over the Monument, and stopped to enter the north end of the switch in order to allow the express north bound to pass. Immediately behind was another train running as section two of train No. 49, in charge of Conductor Griffin. This second section was drawn by engine No. 203, in charge of Engineer C. P. Harris and fireman Tom Reed. When the first section stopped one brakeman started ahead to open the switch and the other noticing that the second section was coming close behind, went to the rear of the train with a lantern to flag it, not caring to place full dependence on the lights which were in their proper place on the rear platform of the caboose. This brakeman, Frank Smith, also Conductor Davis, noticed that the train was running quite fast as it approached, but did not fully realize that it was not going to stop in time. When a few car lengths away they noticed that the engineer was paying no attention to their signal, neither was he slacking speed any. Davis took the precaution to step from the bridge but Smith, the brakeman, seeing that he did not have time to get off the bridge, jumped into the creek bed below, a distance of about 35 feet.

The engine came crashing into the caboose, breaking it into fragments, also demolishing a car load of ore just ahead. The engine kept the track but the bulk of the caboose fell from the bridge into the creek. There were several persons in the caboose at the time, and it was supposed of course that they were killed instantly, but miraculous as it may seem they escaped, but not without serious injuries. Tom Grady, fireman of the first section, who was sick, lay asleep in the caboose. There were also in the car one other train man and I. D. Delano, a passenger. Grady was crowded by the crash into the freight car just ahead of the caboose, and strange to say escaped with only a few bruises. Delano went over the bridge with the caboose and had his shoulder blade dislocated.

Frank Smith, the brakeman, who jumped from the train, had his ankle badly fractured.

It appears that the accident was owing almost entirely to the carelessness of Harris, the engineer of the second section, although it is claimed that his brakes would not work. There was a straight track for a distance of nearly three miles and he could have easily seen the signals on the rear of the caboose had he been on the look-out. The fireman says that he was the first to notice their close approach to the train and gave the alarm. Harris immediately reversed his engine and jumped from the cab, while the fireman stepped back into the tender. Harris jumped just as the collision occurred, not knowing that he was on the bridge. He struck his head on some rocks in the bed of the stream, where he was afterward found in an unconscious condition. Had he remained with the engine as did Reed, the fireman, he probably would not have been injured at all. As it turns out he is the worst injured of them all.

All four of the injured men were taken to No. 4 Cascade terrace, and Doctors Solly and Anderson summoned to attend them. With the exception of Harris they were all resting easy last evening. He sustained a fracture of the skull and a fracture of the left arm, and has one of the fingers of his right hand broken. His wife came down from Denver on the noon train yesterday and is giving him careful attention.

I. D Delano, who had his shoulder dislocated, was a passenger on the caboose. He is ex master mechanic of the Union Pacific and a man who has had over 30 years of railroad experience. His son, general freight agent of the Texas & St Louis railway under Mr. G. W. Ristine, formerly of the D. & R. G., has been telegraphed to of the accident. But little delay was caused by the accident as the track was soon cleared.

OUR WATER SUPPLY.

The Mains to be Extended Farther up Ruxton Creek.

A special meeting of the city council was held Thursday afternoon to take under consideration the question of extending the water main from the present head further up Ruxton creek. This project was recommended some time ago by Messrs. Russell & Alexander, but in some way the matter was overlooked. The recent purchase of the Iron Spring property by an Illinois syndicate brought the councilmen to a realization of the fact that some action should be taken at once to secure the right of way up the stream. Furthermore more complaints have been made this summer than ever before to the effect that the stream was being polluted by campers and residents upon its banks, and to avoid any farther trouble in this direction it has become necessary to extend the mains farther up stream.

At the meeting it was resolved that steps should be taken immediately to obtain the right of way and extend the main, but by request the GAZETTE refrained from making any report of the meeting. The water works committee consisting of Aldermen Anderson, Bent and Ralstin, together with City Clerk McCreery, were empowered to go ahead, secure the right of way and negotiate for pipe with which to extend the main.

Immediately after the adjournment of the meeting Aldermen Anderson, Ralstin and Jones and Clerk McCreery drove to the head of the main on Ruxton creek, taking with them Assistant City Engineer Pease. A survey of the creek was begun extending up stream from the present head and the city will now have ninety days in which to file completed claim of right of way. It is proposed to extend the main a distance of 3,300 feet or to where the bridge on the Pike's Peak trail crosses the stream. The head will then be on government land, a lease of which can be obtained by the city, thus prohibiting trespassers and preventing pollution of the water.

It is the intention of the committee to lay a two foot main at the head and grade it down to a connection with the present twelve inch pipe. This will give a higher pressure, consequently an increased flow into the reservoir.

SCHOOL BONDS.

The Question Carried by Vote of 87 to 38.

In accordance with the call issued voters of School district No. 11 assembled at the high school building yesterday afternoon at half past one to vote on the proposition of issuing $12,000 in bonds for the erection of an additional school building.

Dr. Correy, president of the board of trustees, called the meeting to order and D. B. Fairley secretary pro tem. read the call, also the state law under which it had been made. As there were but very few present when the meeting was called to order an adjournment of fifteen minutes was taken on the motion of Dr. Reed until others came.

Upon reassembling Mr. A. Saugendorf took the chair, Dr. Correy having been called away to attend a meeting of the board of trustees of the Deaf Mute Institute.

It was moved by Dr. Reed and seconded by Mr. Steele, that $13,000 be the sum voted upon under the call as amount of bonded indebtedness. This was carried viva voce, but on appeal from decision of the chair by Mr. Stewart, Dr. Reed's motion was sustained by a standing vote of 24 to 6.

Those present then proceeded to vote for and against the issuance of $12,000 in bonds, the polls being kept open until six o'clock. The result of the count was 87 for bonds, 38 against bonds.

COLORADO MATTERS.

Row of Large Dimensions in the State Militia.

Damaging Evidence in the Hirzel Murder Case.

Frank James' Trial Well Under Way in Missouri.

Trial for Murder

DENVER, August 24—The preliminary hearing in the case in which Anton Hirzel, Michael Struble and Bernhardt Miller, charged with the murder of William Sommers on the 12th of this month, came up in Justice Jeffries' court this morning. When the people rested the justice discharged Miller and Struble but held Hirzel without bail. The evidence thus far obtained is very damaging to Hirzel. Kate Swinger, an eye-witness and sister of the murdered man, testified that she went after her brother the night of the assault. She got there about 9 o'clock and asked her brother to come home. Sommers went out the back way. She followed him a few minutes later and when she got to the door she saw Hirzel get the hoe, and told him not to strike her brother. He said he would do so if he liked. She took hold of the hoe but Hirzel jerked it away from her and struck Sommers with it. He struck the second time but she caught the hoe and prevented it striking her brother. The defense will probably attempt to prove that Sommers struck Hirzel with a can and that Hirzel hit him with the hoe in self-defense.

Row in the Militia

DENVER, August 24.—The row in the camp of the state militia has culminated in charges being preferred against Captain Carpenter for alleged disobedience of orders, and last night he was placed under arrest. He will be tried by court martial on the 13th day of September. Being under arrest he will be deprived of the command of the company. It is said that the Governor's Guard, Captain Carpenter's company, will make an attempt to withdraw from the state militia.

Frank James' Trial.

KANSAS CITY, August 24.—The Journal's Gallatin special says: There were a great number of ladies in the court room at the afternoon session and the court room was filled to overflowing. Several witnesses were called, among whom were Frank Tutt, Dave Pool and others for the defense and Dick Liddel and Sarah Hite for the state. W. L. Earthman, the first witness, testified that he was the tax collector in Davidson county, Tenn., in which Nashville is situated. He knew Frank James in '79 as B J. Woodson; met him first with Jesse at a horse race Jesse; went by the name of J. D. Howard. Was there when the case was set for trial in June, when Frank James asked if I came up here to hang him. The question was asked if witness knew Tom Hill. Defense objected on the ground that Hill was not mentioned in the indictment. The state proposed to show that Hill was Bill Ryan, a member of the gang, and when Ryan was arrested the others left the state. The court overruled the objection.

Witness resumed: I knew Hill, who afterwards proved to be Ryan. I arrested him. He was fully armed. Met Dick Liddel only a year ago.

James Moffatt, of Nashville, identified the prisoner at the bar as J. E. Woodson.

Mrs. Sarah Hite was called and received the breathless attention of the audience. She said: When I married George Hite, in Kentucky, he had several children; four boys, Clarence, John, George and Wood. In March, '81, defendant came to our house with Dick Liddel and Jesse James, all armed. They came back next month acting as though frightened; stood at the windows with guns in their hands looking outside; did not see Frank after the 27th of April; Mr. Hite's first wife was Frank James' aunt. Defense declined to cross-examine witness.

Selas Norris, of Kentucky, testified that he knew Jesse James in March, 1881. Jesse introduced his brother think Liddel was present.

After further testimony of minor importance court adjourned until morning.

The event of to-morrow will be the testimony of Dick Liddel, upon whom the state mainly relies for its case. This man has assumed to be an informer. The plan of the defense will be to impeach Dick's testimony as unworthy of credence by reason of his having been convicted of infamous crimes.

Your correspondent learned facts in Liddel's history, which seems to have been forgotten. It will be sworn that he served a term in the Missouri penitentiary for horse stealing.

Various opinions are held concerning the testimony given to-day. James' sympathizers say that the state has thus far failed to make a single point, while the other side regard the testimony as the beginning of a chain of evidence which cannot be broken by the defense.

Governor Crittenden was present in the court room to-day. He will return to Jefferson City Sunday. On the way here this morning he met Charles Ford, who introduced himself to the governor and said the pretended interview held with him in which he was made to say that Governor Crittenden offered him a reward for killing Jesse James was false and that he intended to publish a statement to that effect to-morrow. The governor never saw Charles until this morning. It will be remembered that according to the interview referred to Bob Ford conducted the negotiations with the governor.

Crittenden Subpoenaed.

KANSAS CITY, August 24. Governor Crittenden arrived last night from Jefferson City and left this morning for Gallatin, where he has been subpoenaed by the defense to testify at James' trial. The governor says he cannot imagine what they expect to prove by him, except the mere fact of Frank's surrender.

Distressing Accident

NEW YORK, August 24.—Andrew Sanger and Carl Stein, workmen in Huepfelt's brewery, Sixteenth street, to-day entered a large wash tub to do some work. Ignorant of their presence the engineer set the machinery in motion and the life was literally pounded out of Sanger. Carl Stein was taken out alive and sent the hospital.

Seats for Maude Granger in "Her Second Love" sold quite largely yesterday.

There were pleasant sociables in three of Colorado Springs' churches last night.

Large numbers of people watched the operations at the artesian well yesterday.

Mrs. Col. J. H. Bacon went to Denver yesterday afternoon and will visit a week or ten days with friends.

The Salt Lake train came in on time last night for the first time in a good while. Conductor Bales and Engineer Icon are responsible.

Major T. G. Stevenson, editor of the Ionia (Mich.) Sentinel, who with his wife has been spending some weeks in Colorado Springs, will return east to-day.

Mr. G. W. Brown, of Denver, registered at The Antlers last evening. He has just returned from a trip to Albuquerque and Las Vegas, New Mexico.

William E. Gowdy, representing Walter Brown & Co., wool commission merchants, of Boston, is in the city trying to make some bargains with our wool growers.

The iron cells in the basement of the city hall are completed with the exception of painting, and in a few days our officers will have a safe place in which to incarcerate city offenders.

Legal voters should turn out this afternoon and vote on the question of issuing $12,000 in bonds for the erection of an additional school house. The meeting will be opened at 1.30 o'clock.

The Antlers still keeps crowded, and from present indications will keep so for some months to come. It is expected that this house will be as popular a winter resort as it is as a summer resort.

Mr. John McTier is moving the fixtures from his billiard hall in the basement of the Wells & Prowitt block preparatory to having a cement floor put in. It will be completed and in running order again in about three weeks.

Judge B. J. Brown, attorney of the Little Rock & Fort Smith railroad, is spending the summer in this place and Manitou with his son. The judge resides at Van Buren, Ark., and conducted the prosecution of the four men who robbed a train at Mayberry Station, which prosecution resulted in the conviction and execution of the four.

At a meeting of the State Firemen's association at Trinidad on Wednesday night officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, J. W. Calloway, of Pueblo; first vice-president, Judge Pixley, Colorado Springs; second vice-president, H. F. Moore, Trinidad; third vice-president, J. Logue, Black Hawk; secretary, G. F. Peck, South Pueblo; treasurer, H. E. Mulnix, Trinidad. South Pueblo was selected as the place for next year's tournament.

Samuel C. Thompson, who was at work on J. F. Seldomridge's ranch, between sixty and seventy miles east of Colorado Springs, was on Wednesday afternoon severely bitten by a rattlesnake. The antidotes that were at command were used freely with the desired effect of keeping the poison from circulating through the system. The man was placed in a wagon and brought to this city and was yesterday under the treatment of Doctors Hart and Tucker. The bite is a severe one, but Thompson will recover from it.

TO INVALIDS AND TOURISTS!
THE
Seven Lakes Hotel
IS NOW OPEN.

It is the highest Hotel of the kind in the world and in the highest forest.

The principal lake is 80 feet deep and one mile in diameter; is the highest in the world, 11,482 feet above tide water.—[Report of the U. S. Signal Service.

It has the highest sail boats in the world.

"The road via Cheyenne Canon and Beaver Park to Pike's Peak, about 13,000 feet, is the highest carriage road in the world, and the volcanic crater, within which are the Hotel and Lakes, is the highest and largest in the world. It does not militate against the crater that it has but one opening."—[Chancellor of the Kansas State University.

Professor Spring says: "The scenery is extraordinary; sublime beyond description."

Said the pyrotechnist who made the fire works for the great Masonic celebration in Chicago: "I never felt so near the Great White Throne as when beholding these stupendous remains of God Almighty's fire works."

Rev. H. C. Crane says: "Along the Cheyenne road, and at the Lakes, the views are glorious. By the old lake-bed, over 13,000 feet in the air, I found many precious crystals. I have never felt so happy since my marriage day."

Rev. Mrs. Crane: "All this, and heaven too."

Bierstadt, the Rocky Mountain artist: "I never grow weary of looking at it. It changes every hour. Cheyenne mountain, over the crest of which runs the road to the Lakes and Pike's Peak, is the only mountain in the world which rises without a base. From the prairies it boldly springs up 4,000 feet."

Various journals, notably the Atlantic Monthly, and "H. H.," speak kindly of the House, Lakes and road.

"O, for some kind friend to kick me up another hill," said Mark Twain before the road was made.

The water and highly developed air, ozone (progressed oxygen) cure many diseases. Exhaustion, nervousness and every symptom of paralysis disappear. So with many lung and heart troubles.

The Hotel is four miles from Pike's Peak (official survey); carriage way three miles. Everything in Hostelry, Guides, Couriers, Horses, Burros, Tents, Lunches, etc., furnished at reasonable rates. Goat's or cow's milk for invalids. Stage twice a week. Address or call on

RAILROADS IN MEXICO.

The national railroad system of Mexico as planned by her political leaders before they granted the several concessions was as follows: Three trans continental east and west lines, with two north and south lines. This was for the country noth of the City of Mexico. For the triangle south of that point a little system of its own was mapped out. To this system was afterward added another line from Laredo to the City of Mexico, running near the coast. This plan gives to each state, except two which are remote and unimportant, one or more lines of railroad; and, what is important, direct communication for each with the capital of the country.

In actual construction this plan has not been completely worked out, but satisfactory progress has been made. The chief parts of the system were given, by concession, to two representative American companies, the National and Central. The north and south line from El Paso to the City of Mexico and the Trans-continental line from Tampico to Mazatlan fell to the latter. The north and south line from Laredo to the City of Mexico fell to the National company. The trans-continental line to be built by this company runs from the City of Mexico to Manzanillo, the section from the City of Mexico to Vera Cruz having been previously built by an English company. Both of these companies have made rapid progress on their contracts with the government. Both began work in October, 1881, and have already constructed, between them, 1,600 miles of road, costing probably over $50,000,000.

The work of these companies represents nearly all that has been done in Mexico, in actual construction, by American companies, as will be seen by the following table giving by detail all of completed railway mileage up to date:

| American Lines. | Miles |
|---|---|
| City of Mexico, towards Aguascalientes and branches (Central) | 315 |
| El Paso, towards Durango (Central) | 432 |
| Tampico, westward (Central) | 62 |
| Guaymas to Nogales (allied with Central interests) | 265 |
| City of Mexico, towards Morelia (National) | 227 |
| Laredo, towards Saltillo (National) | 220 |
| Detached lines (National) | 178 |
| Altata to Culiacan (Sinaloa and Durango) | 38 |
| Eagle Pass, towards Durango (Huntingdon line) | 74 |
| | 1791 |
| English lines. | |
| Vera Cruz to City of Mexico and branches | 293 |
| Mexican lines. | |
| City of Mexico to Cuantla and branches (Morelos road) | 183 |
| Yucatan lines | 65 |
| Hidalgo road | 56 |
| Other short Mexican roads | 300 |
| Tehauntepec (forfeited from Americans) | 22 635 |
| Total railway mileage of Mexico | 2,719 |

The two principal American companies have all the time 100 or more miles of grading in advance of track laying. They are laying track from four or more points and it is possible that both may have through routes completed to the City of Mexico by the end of 1884.

This system is simply an extension of the enormous railway system of the United States, and is so regarded and accepted in the general mind. The whole southwestern system of our country converges at San Antonio and from thence crosses the Rio Grande at Laredo. At El Paso the Texas Pacific already has 400 miles of Mexican connection, while there are branches crossing the border at Eagle Pass and Nogales.

At the school meeting yesterday the tax-payers of this school district voted to authorize the issue of $12,000 in bonds to build a school house in the Third ward. This is a happy and wise ending of the recent discussion. The amount is none too large and the board will find it necessary to exercise great care not to exceed it. With this amount not only is a new building to be built, but a suitable lot purchased, the building properly furnished and the services of a good architect paid for. We trust that the money will be so wisely spent that we shall have at least one school building in the city which conforms to the simplest sanitary requirements. This building will then be the first step in the direction of a good system of public school buildings which this city should now possess. A good deal of money has heretofore been expended, but it has not been expended wisely. This improvement will be permanent, unlike all the other buildings put up. The wooden school buildings are uncomfortable and far from what they should be, and must soon give place to better ones. The stone house requires annual alterations and improvements, but so far the building has few of the features of the modern school house. The vote yesterday expressed confidence in the school board which was well deserved. The school house, of course, cannot be ready for the fall term, but it can easily be finished for occupancy the second half year. Meanwhile the board can make temporary arrangements for this fall, knowing there will be room enough in the winter.

Our dispatches announce the death of Count de Chambord, the heir to the throne of France. On the 2d of August 1830, Charles X. finding that the army had deserted him, abdicted in favor of his young grandson Henry, duke of Bordeaux, son of the duke of Berri; the dauphin, who was childless, also renounced his own claims on behalf of his nephew, who was then only ten years old. This last representative of the older branch of the Bourbons has been known to modern history as Henry, count of Chambord, who died yesterday after months of suffering. He has always cherished his claims to the throne, has assumed the kingly style, and was recognized by the legitimist party as Henry V. The common theory is that the death of the count de Chambord will weaken the royalist movement in France. On the contrary his death will strengthen it in so far as it will unite the Bourbons and Orleanists and put at their head the Count of Paris, who is a man of affairs and something of a politician. Several attempts at fusion of the parties has been defeated by Chambord's stubborn impracticability and want of tact. His successor the French republicans evidently distrust; and in anticipation of the death of Chambord began several months ago to abridge the powers and privileges of the Orleanist princes. If he follows the traditions of his family and issues a manifesto a grave political crisis will be precipitated.

PERSONAL.

If pictorial advertisements and bill-posters will ensure success, a brilliant season is in store for Mr. Lawrence Barrett.

Count de Lesseps is being spoken of as the next candidate for the presidency of the French republic. But before M. Grevy's term expires, Lesseps will be eighty years of age.

Miss Charlesworth, a young lady who assisted Miss Booth at the Salvation Army meetings in Paris and Switzerland, is about to marry the brother of Miss Booth.

The case of Martin vs. Maconochie, the famous ritualist divine, which has been before the English public for about fifteen years, is at last decided by Mr. Maconochie being deprived of his ecclesiastical preferments.

Lord and Lady Carnarvon are coming to this country, and intend to make a lengthened tour through the states and Canada.

Princess Beatrice, the youngest of Queen Victoria's daughters, is suffering from rheumatism, although she is only twenty-six years old. She is at Aix les Bains, where the waters, which are hot and sulphurous, are used extensively for bathing, and in a very few cases for drinking; they contain a large quantity of sulphate of alum, and are excellent for all kinds of rheumatic complaints.

Freddie Gebhard is trying to console himself for the loss of the Lily by plunging madly into the vortex of turf speculation. And not alone that: he leads a great many good young men astray by giving them tips. He induced all the high-collar brigade to back Snedeker's mare Duchess on the day that Nonage beat her. As a result there was a greatly diminished consumption of lemonade at Delmonico's on that evening, and much unpleasant discussion as to Freddie's judgment of horses.

Sunken Cities of Ireland

Chambers' Journal.

There are numerous legions of sunken cities scattered through Ireland, some of which are of a most romantic origin. Thus the space now covered by the Lake of Inchiquin is reported in former days to have been a popular and flourishing city: but, for some dreadful and unabsolved crime, tradition says it was buried beneath the deep waters. The "dark spirit" of its King still resides in one of the caverns that border the lake, and once every seven years at midnight he issues forth, mounted on his white charger, and makes the complete circuit of the lake; a performance which he is to continue until the silver hoofs of his steed are worn out, when the curse will be removed and the city reappear once more in all its bygone condition. The peasantry affirm that even now, on a calm night, one may clearly see the towers and spires gleaming through the clear water. With this legend we may compare one told by Burton in his "History of Ireland." In Ulster is a lake thirty thousand paces long and fifteen thousand broad, out of which ariseth the noble northern river called Bann. It is believed by the inhabitants that they were formerly wicked, vicious people who lived in this place; and there was an old prophecy in every one's mouth that whenever a well, which was therein, and was continually covered and locked up carefully, should be left open so great a quantity of water would issue thereout as would forthwith overflow the whole adjacent country. It happened that an old beldam, coming to fetch water, heard her child cry, upon which, running away in haste, she forgot to cover the spring, and coming back to do it the land was so overrun that it was past her help; and at length she, her child and all the territory were drowned, which caused this pool that remains to this day." Giraldus Cambrensis, too, notices the tradition of Lough Neagh having once been a fountain which overflowed the whole country, to which More thus alludes:

> "On Lough Neagh's banks as the fisherman strays,
> When the clear cold eve's declining,
> He sees the round towers of other days
> In the waves beneath him shining."

The Cathedral of Bourges.

Henry James in September Atlantic.

Above the porches, which give the measure of its width, the front rears itself, piles itself, on a great scale, carried up by galleries, arches, windows, sculptures, and supported by the extraordinary thick buttresses of which I have spoken, and which, though they embellish it with deep shadows thrown sidewise, do not improve its style. The portals, especially the middle one, however, are extremely interesting: they are covered with curious early scriptures. The middle one, however, I must describe alone. It has no less than six rows of figures the others have four—some of which, notably the upper one, are still in their places. The arch at the top has three tiers of elaborate imagery. The upper of these is divided by the figure of Christ in judgment, of great size, stiff and terrible, with outstretched arms. On either side of him are ranged three or four angels, with the instruments of the Passion. Beneath him, in the second frieze, stands the angel of justice, with his scales, and on either side of him is the vision of the last judgment. The good prepare, with infinite titillation and complacency, to ascend to the skies, while the bad are dragged, pushed, hurled, stuffed, crammed into pits and caldrons of fire. There is a charming detail in this section. Beside the angel, on the right, where the wicked are the prey of demons, stands a little female figure, that of a child, who, with hands meekly folded and head gently raised, waits for the stern angel to decide upon her fate. In this fate, however, a dreadful big devil also takes a keen interest. He seems on the point of appropriating the tender creature. He has a face like a goat and an enormous hooked nose. But the angel gently lays a hand upon the shoulder of the little girl—the movement is full of dignity—as if to say, "No, she belongs to the other side." The frieze below represents the general resurrection, with the good and the wicked emerging from their sepulchers. Nothing can be more quaint and charming than the difference shown in their responding to the final trump. The good get of their tombs with a certain modest gayety, an alacrity tempered by respect; one of them kneels to pray as soon as he has disinterred himself. You may know the wicked, on the other hand, by their extreme shyness; they crawl out slowly and fearfully; they hang back and seem to say, "Oh, dear!" These elaborate sculptures, full of ingenious intention and of the reality of early faith, are, in a remarkable state of preservation; they bear no superficial signs of restoration and appear scarcely to have suffered from the centuries. They are delightfully expressive; the artist had the advantage of knowing exactly what effect he wished to produce. The interior of the cathedral has a great simplicity and majesty, and above all a tremendous height. The nave is extraordinary in this respect; it dwarfs everything else I know. I should add, however, that I am, in architecture, always of the opinion of the last speaker. Any great building seems to me, while I look at it, the ultimate expression. At any rate, during the hour that I sat gazing along the high vista of Bourges, the interior of the great vessel corresponded to my vision of the evening before. There is a tranquil largeness, a kind of infinitude, about such an edifice; it soothes and purifies the spirit, it illuminates the mind. There are two aisles, on either side, in addition to the nave, five in all—and, as I have said, there are no transepts; an omission which lengthens the vista, so that from my place near the door the central jeweled window in the depths of the perpendicular choir seemed a mile or two away. The second or outward of each pair of aisles is too low, and the first too high. Without this inequality the nave would appear to make an even more prodigious flight. The double aisles pass all the way round the choir, the windows of which are inordinately rich in magnificent old glass. I have seen glass as fine in other chuches, but I think I have never seen so much of it at once.

Our Forefathers' Libraries.

In our forefathers' libraries books were often arranged in piles, one volume upon another, the faces being toward the beholder, and a ticket fronted him over the face of the book, giving all needful particulars of subject, author, and the like. A trace of this fashion remains, if memory does not play us false, in the books on which the bust of Accepted Frewen is placed in York cathedral. Although the charms of morocco and gilt ornamentation which at present so greatly endear books to their possessors would by this method of arrangement be lost, the task of the bibliographer would be lightened. He could take in his stock at a glance. Perhaps a plan of this character will be elaborated at some future conference of librarians. Indeed a literary cynic, as he contemplates the hundreds of thousands of volumes contained in the great libraries of the country, and reflects on the enormous accessions annually made to our literature, as revealed by the publishers' catalogues, to say nothing of the mass of foreign literature which is added to their shelves, may well speculate whether all the reading which will be possible seris nepotibus will not possess a bibliographical tinge of the encyclopedic, in the sense of knowing something of the available sources of information on every subject. Fortunate, indeed, and to be counted on the fingers, will be those English authors who are read, say, a century hence.

THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Notes and Comments

The curious phenomena of clairvoyance and spiritualism are likely to receive a more thorough scientific investigation than they have hitherto been subjected to. An association has been formed in England which takes to itself the name of "The Society for Psychical Research." The president is Professor Henry Sidgwick, of Cambridge, the distinguished author of "Methods of Ethics." Among its officers are the eminent physicist Prof Balfour Stewart and Prof W. F. Barrett, of the Royal College of Science, Dublin. In the list of members are such names as William Crookes, Stanly Lane Poole, G. C. Romanes, Alfred R. Wallace. There are six committees in the society, one on thought-transference, one on mesmerism, one physical phenomena, one on haunted houses, one on certain alleged magnetic properties of special organizations, and one on dreams, premonitions, apparitions etc. The proceedings of the society which are published form very interesting reading matter. "There is no endeavor to refer these phenomena," says the Nation, "to spiritualism, and they are treated throughout as if ordinary operations (however mysterious) of mind upon mind. The discussions will commend themselves as sane, cautious and moderate."

The above appears to be the most powerful endeavor which has yet been made toward a candid and thorough investigation of the phenomena in question. Most thoughtful persons have been convinced that under the immense chaff heap of modern spiritualism there lie some grains of valuable truth. It seems tolerably clear, for example, that it is possible for mind to communicate with mind across great reaches of space in ways hitherto not analyzed or understood. The collection and comparison of well attested cases of this sort will, it is hoped, enable scientific men by and by to formulate the laws under which this curious operation takes place. The proceedings of the society for psychical research are published by Trubner, and the intellectual and moral quality of its working membership is such as to command the confidence of all who are interested in these matters.

An event of very great importance to the temperance cause has lately occurred in England. The house of commons by a majority of 87 has adopted the local option principle. The measure was introduced into parliament about thirty years ago by Sir Wilfred Lawson, then Mr Lawson. At the first vote it had only 30 supporters. "Let those laugh who win," said Mr Lawson, good naturedly. "The members of the house shall have an opportunity to vote upon this measure at every session while I have the honor of a seat in it." With English pluck and persistence Mr Lawson has kept his word. The supporters of the measure have increased every year till now even Mr Gladstone, who has all along doggedly opposed the proposition, voted in favor of it and the resolution was carried by the majority above mentioned. If the temperance movement continues to make such strides in the mother country as it has been making for the last twenty years, England will no longer suffer the reproach of being the most "drunken nation in the world with more poverty, pauperism and crime than any other."

In the Methodist Episcopal church of this country the wisdom of limiting all pastorates to three years is undergoing vigorous discussion. The rule appears to be a good one for country parishes. Pastorates in the rural districts are, as a rule, brief in all the denominations. Men of slender intellectual caliber wear out after a little and are almost as glad to seek a new field as their congregations are glad to have them. The rule of the Methodist Episcopal church, so far as the country parishes are concerned, merely gives official sanction to what would take place anyhow, while it has the advantage of greatly lessening the friction often attending a change of pastorates in the other denominations. The rule does not work as well, however, in the case of the ablest ministers and the large city parishes. The Christian Union points out that the conditions of society have greatly changed in one important respect since the foundation of Methodism. In the last century only a thirtieth of the population lived in towns, now between a fourth and fifth. No man was quicker than John Wesley to adapt himself to the necessity of the situation. Were he now living in America it seems probable that he would be in favor of the removal of the time limit, or at least of such a construction of it as would allow the ablest preachers in the church to continue a long ministry in one place, and so to accomplish the work which has been accomplished through the duration of such pastorates as that of Phillips Brooks in Boston, Beecher and Storrs in Brooklyn, John Hall in New York and Goodell in St Louis. To this decision the Methodist church is likely before long to come.

Apropos of the miserable rivalry of different religious denominations, Washington Gladden writes as follow in the Chicago Advance:

I was told only the other day, by a gentleman who had long and abundant experience in the missionary work at the west, that large numbers of reputable business men in the western towns hold themselves aloof from the churches for this reason. In a town where there are four times as many churches as there ought to be, the burden of supporting the churches, even with such home missionary aid as can be obtained, is at least twice as heavy as it ought to be upon the members of the churches. Under such circumstances membership in the church or the congregation becomes a serious matter. Men of property and influence say that they cannot afford it. If there were one church instead of three or four, the burden would be so distributed that it would not be intolerable, and they would gladly avail themselves of the privileges of the church and bear their share of the support. This is the testimony of one who has grown gray in missionary work in the west, respecting the attitude often occupied by reputable men of property in the western towns toward the petty organizations into which the spirit of sect has divided the communities wherein they live. Sectarianism not only rends the church into helpless fragments but it drives into alienation by its un-Christian temper and its bad economy, those who would be its natural supporters. Is it not high time that these competitive denominations ceased from their competition and become what Secretary Barrows calls them, "co-operative denominations?"

It is good to see that Colorado has the honor of leading off in this direction. The Rev Addison Blanchard, Congregational superintendent in Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico, has entered into an arrangement with the home missionary agent of three other denominations, by which they mutually promise to consult with each other before entering a town where another denomination has begun church work, and to even exchange fields and properties where it can be done with advantage to the cause of Christ. Superintendent Leonard has a similar understanding on his field, which comprises Utah, Idaho, and Montana.

In connection with the progress of God in the world, it is an interesting fact that since the beginning of modern missions the Bible has been translated in 812 different languages, spoken by eight hundred and fifty millions of human beings.

Moral weakness in due time inevitably brings intellectual weakness in its train. That is a deep insight in the Biblical writers which leads them to makes wickedness synonomous with folly. The Duke of Wellington spoke once to the effect that it was a moral failure which first made it possible for him to see how to defeat Napoleon.

The Company Liable

New York, August 24.—On July 20th Thomas Marvin, a manufacturer of straw hats, presented two dispatches for Oil City, Pa., at the office of the Western Union Telegraph company. The receiving clerk refused to take them unless he agreed to send them subject to delay. Marvin brought suit against the company for two hundred dollars damages in the First district court. The case was tried and Justice Angel gave a decision in favor of plaintiff. He held however that the refusal of the two dispatches was one act and gave judgment for one hundred with costs.

Killed in Jail

Stevens' Point, Wis., August 24. J. A. Reilly, proprietor of a notorious resort, was shot and killed last night by unknown parties while in jail under arrest for assaulting a young man who visited his bagnio the night previous. It is supposed entrance was obtained by means of a key to Reily's cell. It was entered by a key lying on a table in the corridor. It is thought Reily was asleep when the attacking party opened fire upon him.

The Mystery Party.

New Bedford, Mass., August 24.—The friends of Joseph W. Bartlett of the yacht Mystery, after a conversation with Captain Andrew Snow, who saw a man on one of the Hen and Chickens rocks on the 12th instant, are confident the man gave a Masonic sign and he must have been Bartlett, who was one of the three in the Mystery party.

Whereas, Susan Stephenson, by her certain deed of trust dated on the 19th day of June, A D 1882, and recorded in the office of the county clerk and recorder, of the county of El Paso and state of Colorado, in book 40, on page 686 of the records thereof, on the 20th day of June, A. D 1882, to secure the payment of her two certain promissory notes, bearing even date with said deed of trust for the principal sum of $2,500 00, payable to the order of W. G. Prewitt, one of said notes being for the sum of $1,000.00 payable on or before one year after the date thereof, and the other for the sum of $1,500.00, payable on or before two years after the date thereof, each with interest thereon from date until paid, at the rate of 10 per cent., per annum, payable quarterly, did convey to Irving Howbert, of the county of El Paso and state of Colorado, as trustee, all the hereinafter described premises. And in said deed of trust it was and is further agreed and especially understood, that in case of the death, resignation, removal or absence from the county of El Paso, or refusal or failure or inability of said Irving Howbert to act, then A. A. McGovney, the same to all intents and purposes as if he had been made the trustee in said deed of trust, and whereas the said Irving Howbert is now absent from the county of El Paso and unable to act as such trustee, by which deed of trust it is provided that in case of default in payment of said notes, or either of them, or any part thereof, or the interest thereon or either of them it may be lawful for the said A. A. A. McGovney successor in trust aforesaid, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, do hereby give public notice that I shall on Friday, August 31st, A D. 1883, at the hour of 10 o clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the county of El Paso in the state of Colorado, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, all the premises in said deed of trust described, to-wit: Beginning at a point twenty five (25) feet east of the southwest corner of lot number seventeen (17) in block number ninety-one (91) in the city of Colorado Springs, and running thence northerly, parallel to the west line of said lot, a distance of seventy-five feet to a point, thence easterly, parallel to the south line of said block a distance of fifty (50) feet to a point, thence southerly parallel to the first course a distance of seventy five (75) feet to a point on the south line of said block, thence westerly along the south line of said block and parallel to the second course, a distance of fifty (50) feet to the point of beginning, situated in the city of Colorado Springs, in the county of El Paso and state of Colorado, together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments, privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging, and all the right, title, interest and equity of redemption of the said Susan Stephenson, her heirs or assigns therein.

THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EXISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMATIC AND GOUTY PATIENTS

SALICYLICA is known as a common-sense remedy, because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects.

It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.

SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent cures in three days.

REMEMBER

that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMATISM, GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most intense pains are subdued almost instantly.

Give it a trial. Relief guaranteed or money refunded.

Yesterday morning at ten o'clock the cases of the city of Colorado Springs against Chas. Stockbridge, C. W. Church & Co., and A. Sagendorf, charged with violating the liquor ordinance, came up for hearing before Justice Pixley. Messrs. Bentley and Hatch appeared for the prosecution and Judge Williams represented the defendants. The plea of not guilty previously entered by the defendants through their attorney was withdrawn and a motion to quash the proceedings was made by Judge Williams on the ground that the complaints did not specify whether principal or agent had been guilty of selling liquor in violation of the ordinance. Arguments were heard on both sides touching on the motion. Justice Pixley at 11.30 adjourned court until 2 o'clock, reserving his decision until that time. At 2 o'clock court reassembled and the judge overruled the motion. As neither the complainant nor defendants were prepared for trial a continuance was taken until Friday, August 31st. The case against Charles Stockbridge will be the first one called.

TO INVALIDS AND TOURISTS!

Seven Lakes Hotel

IS NOW OPEN.

It is the highest Hotel of the kind in the world and in the highest forest.

The principal lake is 50 feet deep and one mile in diameter; is the highest in the world, 11,000 feet above tide water. [Report of the U. S. Signal Service.

It has the highest sail boats in the world.

"The road, via Cheyenne Canon and Beaver Park to Pike's Peak, about 13,000 feet, is the highest carriage road in the world, and the volcanic crater, within which are the Hotel and lakes, is the highest and largest in the world. It does not militate against the crater that it has but one opening."—[Chancellor of the Kansas State University.

Professor Spring says: "The scenery is extraordinary; sublime beyond description."

Said the pyrotechnist who made the fire works for the great Masonic celebration in Chicago: "I never felt so near the Great White Throne as when beholding these stupendous [illegible] of God Almighty's fire works."

Rev. H. C. Crane says: "Along the Cheyenne road, and at the lakes, the views are glorious. By the old lake-bed, over 13,000 feet in the air, I found many precious crystals. I have never felt so happy since my marriage day."

Rev. Mrs. Crane: "All this, and heaven too."

Bierstadt, the Rocky Mountain artist: "I never grow weary of looking at it. It changes every hour. Cheyenne mountain, over the crest of which runs the road to the lakes and Pike's Peak, is the only mountain in the world which rises without a base. From the prairies it boldly springs up 6,000 feet."

Various journals, notably the Atlantic Monthly, and "H. H.," speak kindly of the House, lakes and road.

"O, for some kind friend to kick me up another hill," said Mark Twain before the road was made.

The water and highly developed air, ozone (prepared oxygen) cure many diseases. Rheumatism, nervousness and every symptom of paralysis disappear. So with many lung and heart troubles.

The Hotel is four miles from Pike's Peak (official survey); carriage way three miles. Everything in Hostelry, Guides, Couriers, Horses, Burros, Tents, Lunches, etc., furnished at reasonable rates. Goat's or cow's milk for invalids. Stage twice a week. Address or call on
